

A Message from Hector Romero, Founder and CEO of Sanesco International

In today's rapidly changing world of integrative medicine, keeping abreast of the latest developments is a daunting task. As consumers demand alternative methods of treatment, practitioners are presented with a new challenge: to develop protocols that incorporate non-drug therapies and address the root cause of the dysfunction. The critical need for a new paradigm in health care is apparent.

Sanesco International is breaking new ground for practitioners of integrative medicine. Our Communication System Management™ (CSM) model offers the most advanced clinical tools available for managing—and preventing—the underlying cause(s) of disease by addressing imbalances in the body's Communication System. The CSM model can easily be integrated into existing protocols and represents the culmination of years of combined research and experience by members of our highly-qualified multi-disciplinary team. This diverse group is comprised of medical professionals who are leaders in their respective fields. Many maintain active private practices and understand firsthand the challenges faced by today's practitioners.

Sanesco International is committed to being the knowledge leader as more information is revealed about the human body and its remarkable Communication System. We invite you to join us on this exciting journey as we develop advanced tools that will significantly improve clinical outcomes and position integrative medicine at the forefront of health care in the 21st century.
