

Sanesco's Vision and Mission

The Vision

Sanesco envisions a world where practitioners of Integrative Medicine, using a research-based paradigm of the body's Communication System, effectively diagnose, treat and ultimately prevent the root cause of disease.

The Mission

Sanesco's mission is to provide knowledge and create awareness of the body's Communication System as the critical component of health, and to make available a Communication System Management protocol to foster healing and balance within this system.

The Goals

- To define the Communication System for Sanesco's clients and their patients
- To teach practitioners and the public about the Communication System and its impact on health
- To develop effective clinical and educational tools to better understand, assess, and correct imbalances within the Communication System
- To conduct ongoing research to advance knowledge of the Communication System and to develop new clinical tools and therapeutic options
- To conduct ongoing research to further knowledge of this system's base in the function of the HPA-T axis
- To establish Sanesco's standing as the authority on the Communication System and the function of the HPA-T axis
- To provide practitioners of integrative medicine with cost-effective, long-term health solutions for their patients that will yield improved clinical outcomes and expand their patient base
